

REPEAT TESTING:

Any portion of a blood sample, which is not utilized in the initial testing, is stored under refrigeration for a period of time. When a test result is inconsistent with the clinical findings, the physician may have the assay repeated on this sample. Note that not all tests will be suitable for repeat testing after storage. Please call the laboratory if repeat testing is necessary. There is no additional charge for this service.